

12th May 11

Dear David,

Thanks for your letter and Mitterrand - Pasqua enclosure. Saw a film on TV last week, "The Last Mitterrand".

Colonel G? Had he not lost his nerve, after Iraq, and made overtures to the west re ending his nuclear programme and publicly hugging Blair, etc, he would've been just as strong today as he has been these past forty years of sponsoring anti-west/Zionist freedom fighters. Naturally the CIA would've been encouraged by his apparent weakness, and would've increased their continual attempts to destabilise another oil rich country such as Libya. Predictably, Cameron - who attacked Blair's Iraq adventure - is ^{now} playing lickspittle to US interventionist (oil) policy. So it's just one lickspittle after another. And President Al Johnson is different from Bush George only in colour!

The Japan disaster? I haven't even bothered about the nuclear effects - that's one of the advantages of being one of the walking dead! I'm surprised that western countries have shown any sympathy or offered any aid - usually reserved only for third world ethnic of a darker hue!

Bon Ledit? I hope the apparent assassination is as fake as the US have ended up making it appear to be. Few enough freedom fighters left, in a world where major war criminals such as Bush, Blair, Obama, cheerfully get richer by the hour.

Good luck with your new job in Bordeaux.
Jean Francis Lelavisse? Very well connected and experienced. Reminds me of "Strangers on a Train" by Hickock. Also a few cross-crosses. The judge who allowed Pinochet to escape the UK as "not fit to stand" on the Hague for the torture and murder of 4,000 political prisoners in Chile, found me not fit to die, by refusing to stop Ashworth force-feeding me (Judicial Review 2000). In fact Pinochet flew out of the UK as I sat in front of the same judge in court in Liverpool!

Carlos. I corresponded with a prisoner who talked with him when he was held at Paris Centrale after he was kidnapped in middle-east.

If I had been on that train with J.F.C., I certainly would've taken advantage of the opportunity, to further enter the effective sphere of influence and intervention!

Best wishes,